my dear children,

MUHAMMAD HAFIZ, NOOR HAZWANI, ABDUL HAKIM, NOOR HIDAYAH, NOR AQILA and NOR ATIQAH; and my sons- and daughters-in-law,

This twenty-eighth book of Heroes of Islam tells the story of Hayreddin Barbarossa: the younger brother of Oruç Reis who carried on his struggle, placed Algiers under Ottoman protection, freed its harbour from a Spanish fortress, and defeated the fleet of the Holy League at Preveza in 1538. His story is told with honesty about its sources, including the numbers of ships at Preveza, the fate of coastal captives and the alliance with France. May this knowledge be ‘ilmun yuntafa‘u bih — knowledge that benefits.

ABOUT THE COVER OF THIS EBOOK

This eBook's cover does not depict any human being or animal. It shows the Gulf of Preveza on the Ionian Sea on the morning after a storm at the end of September 1538, with dark storm clouds breaking apart and golden sunlight shining through the blue sky.

Across the sea, a fleet of Ottoman war galleys sails in a crescent formation, with long oars and lateen sails filled with wind — recalling the formation of Hayreddin's fleet at the Battle of Preveza.

On the left, on a green rocky headland with cypress and olive trees, stands a stone fortress with round towers guarding the mouth of the gulf. On the horizon, enemy ships are seen scattered and retreating in the haze.

The dark blue band at the bottom, framed by fine gold lines, is where the author's name appears — the same as on the covers of Series 1 to Series 27, so that all the covers of Heroes of Islam match.

HAYREDDIN BARBAROSSA

In 1518 Oruç Reis fell as a martyr near Tlemcen, and the Muslims of Algiers lost the leader who had defended them against Spain. Many thought the struggle would end. But his younger brother, Hızır, rose to carry it on, and within twenty-five years he became the most feared admiral in the Mediterranean.

He is known as Hayreddin (Khayr al-Din, "goodness of the religion"), and Europeans called him Barbarossa. He placed Algiers under Ottoman protection, freed its harbour from a Spanish fortress, was appointed Kaptan-ı Derya (Grand Admiral) of the Ottomans, and defeated the combined European fleet at the Battle of Preveza in 1538.

This eBook is the twenty-eighth in the Heroes of Islam series, continuing the story of his brother in Series 27. Hayreddin's story comes mainly from the Gazavat-ı Hayreddin Paşa, a memoir he himself had written, and from hostile European sources. Every story is given with its source and grade honestly — including the numbers of ships at Preveza, the capture of the people of the Italian coasts, and the alliance with France at Toulon — and its lessons are grounded in the Qur'an and authentic Hadith.

Hayreddin's story is that of a younger brother who did not let his brother's struggle stop, and a sailor who made the sea a rampart for the ummah.

WHO WAS HAYREDDIN BARBAROSSA?

His original name was Hızır son of Yakup, born around 883 AH (1478 CE) on the island of Midilli (Lesbos) in the Aegean Sea. He was the younger brother of Oruç Reis, and died in Istanbul in 953 AH (1546 CE).

After his brother's martyrdom he led Algiers, and was then appointed by Sultan Süleyman the Magnificent as Grand Admiral of the Ottoman fleet. Under his leadership the eastern Mediterranean came under the control of Ottoman ships for several decades.

HIS NAMES AND TITLES

| NAME / TITLE | EXPLANATION |
|---|---|
| Hızır (Khidr) | His original name |
| Hayreddin (Khayr al-Din) | "Goodness of the religion", a title linked to the Ottoman sultan |
| Barbarossa | "Red Beard", a European title inherited from his brother |
| Kaptan-ı Derya | Grand Admiral of the Ottoman fleet (1533) |
| Beylerbeyi | Governor-general of Algiers and of the Islands |

LESSONS

A good name is a trust. The title "goodness of the religion" requires its bearer to strive so that his deeds match his name.

HIZIR FROM THE ISLAND OF MIDILLI

HISTORICAL NOTE: THE YOUNGEST WHO BECAME AN ADMIRAL

Hızır was the third son of Yakup Ağa, an Ottoman cavalryman on Midilli. Like his brothers, he grew up with ships and the sea. According to the Gazavat, he first traded with a small ship, carrying goods around the Aegean.

After his brother Oruç was captured by the Knights of Rhodes and his brother İlyas was killed, Hızır worked to ransom his brother, then joined him in the western Mediterranean. From then on the two brothers struggled together — Oruç as leader, Hızır as his loyal helper.

Status of the report: Narrated in the books of history — chiefly the Gazavat-ı Hayreddin Paşa (Hayreddin's memoir written by Seyyid Murâdî), the Tuhfetü'l-Kibâr of Kâtib Çelebi, and contemporary European sources — without a chain by the standards of the Hadith scholars. The story is accepted as history, but it cannot be used as proof in the way an authentic hadith can.

LESSONS

WITH ORUÇ IN NORTH AFRICA

HISTORICAL NOTE: 1504–1518

With Oruç, Hızır was based in Tunis and Djerba, helped carry the Andalusian Muslims to North Africa, took Jijel (1514) and freed Algiers (1516). When Oruç led the campaign to Tlemcen in 1517, Hızır was left to defend Algiers.

The story of this shared struggle is told in Series 27 (Oruç Reis). After Oruç fell in 1518, the whole burden of leadership fell on Hızır's shoulders, then about 40 years old.

Status of the report: Narrated in the books of history — chiefly the Gazavat-ı Hayreddin Paşa (Hayreddin's memoir written by Seyyid Murâdî), the Tuhfetü'l-Kibâr of Kâtib Çelebi, and contemporary European sources — without a chain by the standards of the Hadith scholars. The story is accepted as history, but it cannot be used as proof in the way an authentic hadith can.

PLACING ALGIERS UNDER OTTOMAN PROTECTION

HISTORICAL NOTE: 1519

After Oruç's martyrdom, Algiers was surrounded by enemies: Spain at Oran and at the Peñón fortress, and rebellious local chiefs. Hızır made an important decision: he sent envoys to Sultan Selim I in Istanbul, offering Algiers as an Ottoman province.

Sultan Selim accepted, appointed Hızır beylerbeyi (governor-general) of Algiers, and sent cannon and about 2,000 Janissaries. With this decision Hızır gave up his independence as a ruler in his own right for the protection of a greater Muslim state. Some historians see it as a wise political decision; others see it as a sign of sincerity.

Status of the report: Narrated in the books of history — chiefly the Gazavat-ı Hayreddin Paşa (Hayreddin's memoir written by Seyyid Murâdî), the Tuhfetü'l-Kibâr of Kâtib Çelebi, and contemporary European sources — without a chain by the standards of the Hadith scholars. The story is accepted as history, but it cannot be used as proof in the way an authentic hadith can.

THE FREEING OF THE PEÑÓN AND THE HARBOUR OF ALGIERS

HISTORICAL NOTE: 1529

For almost twenty years the Spanish fortress of the Peñón on a small island in front of Algiers blocked the harbour and threatened its people. In May 1529, after weeks of bombardment, Hayreddin finally took the fortress — something Oruç had failed to do in 1516.

Hayreddin then demolished the fortress and used its stones to build a mole joining the small islands to the mainland. This mole made Algiers a safe and strong harbour, and it became the main base of the Muslim fleets in North Africa for three centuries.

Status of the report: The taking of the Peñón in 1529 and the building of the harbour mole are established in Ottoman and European sources.

SEVEN VOYAGES FOR THE ANDALUSIAN MUSLIMS

HISTORICAL NOTE: 1529

According to the Gazavat and Kâtib Çelebi, in 1529 Hayreddin sent his ships on several voyages — some say seven — to the coast of Spain to carry Andalusian Muslims (Moriscos) who wished to escape. The Gazavat says about 70,000 people were rescued that year.

This figure cannot be confirmed and may be exaggerated, but Hayreddin's effort to continue his brother's work in helping the Andalusian Muslims is acknowledged by many sources. Many of them settled in Algiers and other North African cities, bringing their learning and skills with them.

Status of the report: The effort to rescue Andalusian Muslims is narrated in Ottoman sources; the figure of 70,000 is uncertain.

KAPTAN-I DERYA: GRAND ADMIRAL OF THE OTTOMANS

HISTORICAL NOTE: 1533

In 1532 the famous Genoese admiral Andrea Doria, serving Emperor Charles V, took several Ottoman fortresses in Greece. Sultan Süleyman the Magnificent needed an admiral able to match him. He summoned Hayreddin to Istanbul.

Hayreddin arrived in Istanbul at the end of 1533 with his fleet, and was appointed Kaptan-ı Derya (Grand Admiral) and beylerbeyi of the Islands. Through the winter he rebuilt the Ottoman fleet in the Istanbul arsenal, making it the strongest fleet in the Mediterranean.

Status of the report: Narrated in the books of history — chiefly the Gazavat-ı Hayreddin Paşa (Hayreddin's memoir written by Seyyid Murâdî), the Tuhfetü'l-Kibâr of Kâtib Çelebi, and contemporary European sources — without a chain by the standards of the Hadith scholars. # TUNIS: BETWEEN VICTORY AND DEFEAT

In 1534 Hayreddin took Tunis from the Hafsid sultan, Mulay Hasan. But the following year (1535) Emperor Charles V came with a great fleet and retook Tunis. Charles V's troops killed and captured many of the people of Tunis — European sources themselves describe the cruelty.

Hayreddin escaped to Algiers with part of his ships. Soon after, he attacked the port of Mahón on the island of Menorca, showing that his strength was not broken. The defeat at Tunis was a bitter lesson, but it did not stop his struggle.

Status of the report: Narrated in the books of history — chiefly the Gazavat-ı Hayreddin Paşa (Hayreddin's memoir written by Seyyid Murâdî), the Tuhfetü'l-Kibâr of Kâtib Çelebi, and contemporary European sources — without a chain by the standards of the Hadith scholars. ## COASTAL RAIDS AND THE FATE OF CAPTIVES

SOURCE NOTE: THE BITTER SIDE

Like all fleets of the time, Hayreddin's fleet also raided enemy coasts — in Italy, Spain and the Mediterranean islands — and brought back captives. European sources mention thousands of civilians from towns such as Lipari (1544) captured and sold as slaves. At the same time, Christian fleets did the same to Muslim coasts, and thousands of Muslims became galley slaves on European ships.

This is stated here honestly because it is part of history. Islamic law sets strict ethics of war, including the prohibition of killing women and children. The customs of war at that time were not all in line with these ethics, and they cannot be made beautiful in the name of heroism.

Status of the report: The raids and captures are established in European and Ottoman sources; the numbers vary.

THE BATTLE OF PREVEZA

HISTORICAL NOTE: 28 SEPTEMBER 1538

In 1538 the Pope, Venice, Spain and other states formed the Holy League to destroy the Ottoman fleet. Their combined fleet, led by Andrea Doria, was far larger — the sources speak of about 300 ships, including large sailing ships, against about 120 Ottoman galleys.

Hayreddin anchored in the Gulf of Preveza on the western coast of Greece and waited patiently. On 28 September 1538 (4 Jumada al-Ula 945 AH) he came out to attack when the wind changed and the enemy fleet was in disorder. The battle ended in an Ottoman victory: several enemy ships were captured or sunk, and Andrea Doria withdrew. This victory placed the eastern Mediterranean under Ottoman power for more than three decades.

Status of the report: The victory at Preveza is established; the numbers of ships and losses vary between sources.

And obey Allāh and His Messenger, and do not dispute and [thus] lose courage and [then] your strength would depart; and be patient. Indeed, Allāh is with the patient.

THE TREATY WITH VENICE

HISTORICAL NOTE: 1540

After Preveza, Venice sought peace. In 1540 a treaty was concluded between the Ottoman state and Venice, in which Venice gave up several of its fortresses in Greece and paid compensation. Trade between the two sides was reopened.

This treaty shows that the aim of war is not merely to destroy the enemy, but to achieve a just peace. Muslims are bound to honour the treaties they have made.

Allah commands accepting peace when the enemy inclines to it:

SURAH AL-ANFAL 8:61

۞ وَإِن جَنَحُواْ لِلسَّلۡمِ فَٱجۡنَحۡ لَهَا وَتَوَكَّلۡ عَلَى ٱللَّهِۚ إِنَّهُۥ هُوَ ٱلسَّمِيعُ ٱلۡعَلِيمُ

And if they incline to peace, then incline to it [also] and rely upon Allāh. Indeed, it is He who is the Hearing, the Knowing.

THE STORM AT ALGIERS (1541)

HISTORICAL NOTE: HELP FROM THE SKY

In October 1541 Emperor Charles V himself came to Algiers with a fleet of more than 500 ships and about 24,000 soldiers to wipe out Hayreddin's base. Hayreddin was then in Istanbul, and Algiers was defended by his deputy, Hasan Ağa, with a far smaller force.

Soon after Charles V's troops landed, a terrible storm struck. Heavy rain spoiled their gunpowder, and great waves destroyed more than a hundred ships. The people of Algiers counter-attacked, and Charles V was forced to withdraw with heavy losses. The Muslims saw the storm as help from Allah.

Status of the report: The failure of Charles V's expedition in 1541 because of the storm is established in European and Ottoman sources.

NICE AND TOULON: THE ALLIANCE WITH FRANCE

HISTORICAL NOTE: 1543–1544

The King of France, Francis I, was then at war with Charles V and formed an alliance with Sultan Süleyman. In 1543 Hayreddin brought his fleet west to help France and, together with French troops, besieged the city of Nice, held by an ally of Charles V.

In the winter of 1543–1544 Hayreddin's fleet wintered in the port of Toulon in southern France, which the French king had emptied for the Ottoman forces. According to tradition, the call to prayer was heard in the town all winter. This alliance was harshly criticised in Europe, and it shows that the politics of the time did not always follow religious lines.

Status of the report: The siege of Nice and the winter at Toulon are established; the story of the call to prayer in Toulon is a tradition.

MEMOIR, ENDOWMENTS AND A MADRASAH

HISTORICAL NOTE: A LEGACY BEYOND THE SWORD

In the last years of his life, Hayreddin asked a writer, Seyyid Murâdî, to record the story of his struggle together with his brothers. The result was the Gazavat-ı Hayreddin Paşa, one of the main sources for Ottoman naval history, though it was also written to praise his family.

He also built a mosque, a madrasah and a bathhouse in Istanbul, and endowed his wealth for charitable works. He lived in his palace on the Bosphorus in the last years of his life.

Status of the report: Narrated in the books of history — chiefly the Gazavat-ı Hayreddin Paşa (Hayreddin's memoir written by Seyyid Murâdî), the Tuhfetü'l-Kibâr of Kâtib Çelebi, and contemporary European sources — without a chain by the standards of the Hadith scholars. The story is accepted as history, but it cannot be used as proof in the way an authentic hadith can.

DEATH AND THE TOMB AT BEŞIKTAŞ

HISTORICAL NOTE: 1546

Hayreddin died in Istanbul in 953 AH (4 July 1546 CE), aged about 68. He was buried at Beşiktaş, on the shore of the Bosphorus, in a tomb built by the great Ottoman architect Mimar Sinan.

According to tradition, for centuries Ottoman naval ships saluted as they passed his tomb before going out to sea. Today a statue and a naval museum stand near the tomb, and his name remains in the history of Algeria and Turkey.

Status of the report: The date of his death and his tomb are established; the story of the ships' salute is a tradition.

STORIES AND FIGURES THAT NEED ASSESSMENT

SOURCE NOTE: BETWEEN FACT AND LEGEND

Some matters in Hayreddin's story need careful assessment. First, the Gazavat-ı Hayreddin Paşa was written at Hayreddin's own request, so it tends to praise; European sources were written by his enemies. Second, the numbers of ships at Preveza and of Andalusian Muslims rescued vary and are hard to confirm. Third, the story that the title "Hayreddin" was given by Sultan Selim I or Sultan Süleyman cannot be confirmed precisely.

Fourth, the label "pirate" in European sources is unfair because it ignores the same actions by the Christian side, but coastal raids and the enslavement of civilians cannot be made beautiful. Fifth, the stories of the call to prayer in Toulon and the ships' salute at his tomb are traditions. What is established: the placing of Algiers under the Ottomans (1519), the taking of the Peñón (1529), his appointment as Kaptan-ı Derya (1533), the victory at Preveza (1538), and his death in Istanbul (1546).

Status of the report: The main events are established; many details are traditions or disputed.
